HINDOO JUGGLERS.

One of the men, taking a large earthen vessel with a capacious mouth, filled it with water, and turned it up side down, when all the water flowed out, but the moment it was placed with the mouth upward it became always full. He then emptied it, and allowed any one to inspect who chose. This being done, he desired one of the party to fill it up. Still when he reversed the jar not a drop of water flowed; and upon turning it, to our astonishment, it was empty.
These, and similar deceptions, were several times repeated; and, although any of us that chose were allowed to upset the vessel when full, which we did many times, upon reversing it no water was to be seen, and yet no appearance of any having escaped. I examined the jar carefully when empty, but detecting nothing, I was allowed to retain and fill it myself; still, upon taking it up, all was void within; so that how the water had disappeared and where it was being conveyed were problems that none of us were able to expound. The vessel employed by the jugglers upon this occasion was the common earthenware of the country, very roughly made, and in order to convince us that it had not been specially made for the purpose of aiding his clever deception, he permitted it to be broken in our presence. The fragments were then handed round for our inspection. A large basket was produced in which was put a lean hungry parish slut.— After a lapse of about a minute the basket was removed, and she appeared with a litter of little puppies. These were again covered, and on raising the magic basket a goat was presented to our view. This was succeeded by a pig in the full vigor of its existence, but which, after being covered for the usual time, appeared with its throat cut. It was, however, soon restored to life under the mystical shake of the wicker covering.

What rendered these sudden changes so extraordinary was, that no one stood near the basket but the juggler, who raised and covered the animals with it. When he concluded his exploits there was nothing to be seen under it, and what became of the different animals which figured in this singular deception, was a question which puzzled all.

A man now took a small bag of brass balls which he threw one by one into the open air, to the number of thirty-five. None of them appeared to return. When he had discharged the last, there was a pause for at least a minute. He then made a variety of motions with his hand and at the same time grunted forth a sort of barbarous chant. In a few seconds the balls were seen to fall one by one until the whole were replaced in the bag; this was repeated at least half a dozen times. No one was allowed to come under him while this interesting juggler was performed.

A gaunt looking Hindoo then stepped forward and declared that he would swallow a snake; opening a box he produced a cobra di capello not less than five feet long and as big as an infant's wrist. He stood apart from some distance from us, and like his predecessors, would not allow any one to approach him so that the deception appeared no longer equivocal. He then, as it appeared to us, took the snake and putting his tail in his mouth, gradually lowered it into his stomach, until nothing but his head appeared to project between his lips, and with a sudden gulp, he seemed to complete the disgusting process of deglutition and to secure the odious reptile within his body. After the expiration of a few seconds, he opened his mouth and gradually drew forth the snake, which he replaced in the box.

The next thing that engaged our attention was a feat of dexterity altogether astonishing.
An elderly woman, the upper part of whose body was entirely uncovered, presented herself to our notice, and taking a bamboo twenty feet long placed it upright upon a flat stone, and without any other support, climbed it with surprising agility. Having done this, she stood up with one foot on the top of the bamboo, balancing it all the while. Round her waist she had a girdle to which was fastened an iron socket. Springing from her upright position on the bamboo she threw herself horizontally forward with such exact precision that the top of the pole entered the socket of her iron round, and in this position she spun herself round with a velocity that made me giddy to look at, the bamboo appearing as a speck in the air, supported by the supernatural agency. She turned her back towards us until her heels touched her shoulders, and grasping her ankles in her hands, continued her rotations so rapidly that the outlines of her body were lost to the eye, and she looked like a revolving ball. Having performed other feats equally extraordinary, she slid down the elastic shaft, and raising it in the air, balanced it on her hip, and finally projected it to a distance from her without the application of her hands.
The next performer spread upon the ground a cloth about the size of a sheet. After a while it seemed gradually raised, and upon taking it up there appeared three pineapples growing under it which were cut, and presented to the spectators. This is considered a common juggler, and yet it is perfectly inex-plorable.—Travels in Hindostan.

REFORM IN THE ARMY.—An important inquiry was instituted by General Grant, shortly after he was installed in the War Office, which is destined to bring to light some curious information. He directed a statement to be made out of all the property belonging to individuals in this city and vicinity, which has been, on one pretext or another, retained in the occupancy of the War Department and its employees.— When that inquiry is fully answered, some quer relations will be made. As it is, there are not a few gentlemen who lament the retirement of the late Secretary, since it deprives some of ambulances, others of horses, others of rations, and others, again, of servants at the public expense. We trust the General will carry out the reforms he has begun in general economy and in detail, and limit every officer in the service to what he is allowed by law.
There has been enough petty peculations going on to keep a small army. The reforms have not been begun a day too soon.—Wash. Ec.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

Without making a useless harangue, I will say to my friends and the public that I am now prepared to supply all of their wants in the way of STOVES. It is time lost to undertake to look for anything better than can be found in my store. I have something new in the way of HEATING STOVES, which cannot be surpassed in style, or beauty of design. To one and all I will say that whatever I sell I warrant to answer the purpose I set it for. I therefore invite my country friends to call and examine my stock of COOKING and HEATING STOVES before purchasing elsewhere, confident that they will not go away displeased. I would also enumerate amongst my stock a fine lot of TIN WARE, of my own manufacture, and made by very experienced workmen; also,
TINNED SAFES, PRESERVING KET-TLES, Fruit Cans, Fine Japanese and Plainished Ware and Chamber Sets, to which I would call the attention of the public. Coffee Urns, Tea Urns, Waffle Irons, Children's Toys,
